Committee.

Texas is in hard luck. Susan B. Anthony proposes to lecture in that State.

Governor Rusk has appointed Judge John K. Bennett, of Janesville, a delegate to the national conference of charities and reform.

The bill in the Senate to place General Grant on the retired list with a handsome salary, was taken up on Monday, and an attempt to have it laid on the table failed. It was referred to the Military Committee, and will pass.

One correspondent telegraphs a Chicago paper that the President should not veto the River and Harbor bill because the treasury is full of money, and sumptuous economy is not needed as in 1876, when General Grant saw fit to hold back part of the money appropriated. What brilliant ideas some men have of political economy!

The death of the Rev. Henry Sanford, a Congregational minister at Broadhead, which took place in that village last Wednesday, is creating considerable excitement there. The autopsy showed a large quantity of poison in his stomach, and the testimony taken before a coroner's inquest made the affair more mysterious than ever. There were so many strange circumstances connected with the death of Mr. Sanford that the jury thought best not to render a verdict last night, and adjourned to the 5th instant.

The Madison Democrat has been canvassing the congressional question in the Third district, and has heard from 22 towns. Four of these, the Democrat's correspondents say, are for Keyes, five for Bryant, five for the re-nomination of Hazleton, and the remainder are for Ryland, Wilson, and some who do not know that Dana is in the Third district, want Caswell re-nominated. While there are several candidates in that district, the impression appears to prevail that Mr. Hazleton will be returned to Congress.

A Philadelphia dispatch says, "It is claimed by responsible persons that there is yet hope of a settlement of the differences between the two factions in the Republican party. It is believed overtures will be made by the Stalwarts, although nobody can see just what move can be made by them." The opinion seems to be current that the Regular Republicans will not make any further overtures to the Independents. The fairest proposition yet made was made by the Regulars when they proposed to call a new convention, and allowed the convention to nominate a new set of candidates for State offices, to take from either ticket such men as the convention thought proper. But the Independents feared that some of the Republicans will be nominated by the new convention, and therefore declined to compromise on these terms. If an honorable compromise can be made it will be the sure salvation of the Republicans of Pennsylvania, but a settlement on the terms proposed by the Independents is both humiliating and un-American.

A few days ago Mr. T. D. Weeks, of Whitewater, was in Milwaukee and while there he happened to see a notice of a candidate for Congress, and after this he was regarded out of the field, but the White-water Register of last week brings out

Mr. Weeks as a candidate; but it announces his candidacy in very mild terms by saying that "when a change is made in the representative in Congress from the First District the staunch Republican county of Walworth desires to furnish the man, and it thinks the general choice of the Republicans of the county for Mr. Williams' successor is T. D. Weeks, of Whitewater." Having some regard for public feeling on the subject the "Register does not feel like pressing his candidacy if there is a general willingness to tender a renomination to Mr. Williams, and says that Mr. Weeks is not a candidate who will push his own claims. But as it appears probable that each of the other counties of the district will present a candidate of its own at the coming convention, the Register proposes that Walworth shall urge the nomination of Mr. Weeks." Mr. Weeks' ambition for a congressional seat seems to be of a very mild type, and the Register treats the case accordingly.

The Common Council of Janesville has again taken up the question of building cisterns in various parts of the city for fire purposes. It went so far as to order the Aldermen of each ward, except those of the Third (this having a cistern already) to select a place where the cistern should be located. In all probability the most that will come of this premature and impracticable movement will be the selection of a place in each ward where the cistern should be built. The Council has had this matter in hand before, and the cisterns were never built, and probably never will be built. In the first place they will cost not far from $500 each; and in the second place there is no money in the treasury to pay for them. Then again, they do not give the protection needed. They may benefit the immediate neighborhood, but as a general rule they are not worth what they cost, and fail to give anything like adequate protection to the ward. There is a possibility that Janesville will have water works some time, and it is hoped that the time will not be long delayed, and for this reason the Council should delay further action on the cistern question. They are not only expensive, but they do not afford the protection which the taxpayers of the wards are entitled to.

Take the Cake.

Mr. Jones is very fond of cake, and when his wife has company to tea she usually instructs him beforehand not to eat more than one piece himself. One evening, however, company was dropped in unexpectedly and Mrs. Jones had no time to reach Jones. She sat down to the table and the first thing Jones did when the tea was served was to dip into the cake basket and possess himself of a large slice of citron cake, which he buttered profusely and quickly disposed of. Then, as he went on talking with the gentlemen of the party, and remarking that he had no sympathy with daggonages, he reached over and secured a generous piece of fruit cake. "Trophy!" said his wife warningly. The wretched man knew something was amiss, and, as usual, hit on the wrong thing.

"I don't mean anything personal; Mr. Brown understands me, Maria. I am trying to reconcile the difference of parties," and he tackled the cake basket a third time, saying, as he drew a section of pink and gold layer cake, that he felt persuaded the country was going to ruin.

"Pass the cake, Mr. Jones," said his wife in awful tone.

"I pass," answered Jones abstractedly, and with a full hand of coconut jumbles he went on reconstructing the country. In the excitement of forming a new administration he helped himself to a square of hickory-nut cake, which he buttered on both sides. Then Mrs. Jones rose to her full altitude and said, in her home-brewed, bottled-for-use-domestic tone, "Mr. Jones, you are eating that cake basket around which there is a single piece of cake left? If you had the government pie you talk about there wouldn't be even a chance at the plate left for anybody else."

"He takes the cake!" murmured Mr. Brown in his company voice, while Mrs. Jones mentally resolved to hereafter leave the cake on the sideboard until it was time to pass it around.

The Gaze-at-the-Girls Young Man.

Among the curiosities of every large city, is the gaze-at-the-girls young man. That he finds his pursuit agreeable is evident from the way in which he sticks to his business and the rapidity with which he multiplies. There is no trouble in identifying him. He is his own identification. From shortly before noon until dusk the gaze-at-the-girls young man may be seen on the leading thoroughfares. Every pretty face that comes along claims his attention and he at once proceeds to investigate its charms. He does not do this quietly and unobtrusively; not he. The gaze-at-the-girls young man's chief stock in trade is the power of gazing long and intently at the face of a girl.

Then the gaze does not go home. With every gaze goes a smile, a peculiar smile, a sort of a cross between the leoparded smirk of a Gaiety and the asthetic simper of a Bunthorne. This combination is bestowed lavishly. The modest blush is brought to the cheek of virtue by the insistent glare of the young man. He brushes against the girls and fairly forces his gaze into their faces. The gaze-at-the-girls young man will stoop and look under a hat in order to discover what kind of a face is hidden beneath it. He has no hesitation in doing all sorts of unbecoming things in order to satisfy his girl-gazing, and that is why he is noted for impudence, impudence and stupidity.

The gaze-at-the-girls young man is ordered to be arrested in New York whenever he is caught adding some insulting words to his gaze, which is quite often. It would be well if the same order were issued in other cities. A few weeks behind the bars would do the gaze-at-the-girls young man good. He would be careful where and how he gazed thereafter.—Philadelphia Times.

A DESTRUCTIVE BLAZE.

New York, July 31.—The extensive flour mills of Hecker & Co., 205 to 207 Cherry street, burned this morning. Five hundred men employed in the building ran for their lives, and it is believed all escaped, but the flames spread with such alarming rapidity that there may have been some lives lost.

The Express says: "On what floor the flames started, and how they began, cannot at present be ascertained. Trueman's building was soon a mass of flames that rose a distance of 100 feet above the roof. The heat was so intense that the people dwelling in the tenement houses across the street were obliged to flee for their lives, leaving all their household effects behind. The unfortunate occupants of the tenement houses were too soon for the flames shot to the opposite side of Cherry street, and in less time than it takes to write it, the conflagration had wrapped at least fifteen houses in flames, extending from 194 up to Pine street, and continuing for several houses beyond that thoroughfare. While the flames were burning with terrific force at the flour mill, the walls fell in, killing two firemen. At the same time it became known that four of the factory hands had perished in the flames. It was currently reported at the time that a number of those residing in the tenement houses across the street were unable to escape and were among the dead. So far as could be ascertained, the total loss by fire will be over $1,000,000 and possibly much more.

WATERSPOUT.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 31.—A Millersburg special to the Leader reports a waterspout and sudden flood there to-day sweeping away a great many bridges, some buildings, and drowning numbers of live stock on bottom lands. A small stream called Sapp's Run overflowed hundreds of acres, carrying off and destroying hay and other harvested crops. Houses in various places were wholly or partly submerged; families narrowly escaped by hurrying to the high lands, and it is feared some people have been lost. Railway travel in that section is obstructed by the washing away of culverts and bridges. Rain fell in torrents, and in the evening was still falling and threatening further destruction.

SENATOR HILL'S CONDITION.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 31.—Senator Hill's condition this evening is characterized as being very precarious. Yesterday he was at times delirious, and to-day no perceptible change has been noticed. His death may be expected at any moment. Attending physicians think him far weaker to-day. He has been confined to his bed all day, where he is surrounded by his family.

RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The President did not send a message to Congress to-day relative to the river and harbor bill, but there is no reason to deviate from the position taken in these dispatches last night, that the bill will be approved. Whatever is looking in positive information that such will be the President's action is supplemented by the all important circumstance that a veto would be entirely superfluous and an antagonism of the Executive to the two Houses of Congress.

FANNY PARNELL.

New York, July 31.—The Herald's Trenton, N. J., special says: "The body of the late Miss Fanny Parnell, which was temporarily placed in a receiving vault in this city, was embalmed to-day by Drs. Newton and Fish, of Philadelphia, and Tatum, of Trenton, preparatory to its removal to Ireland for interment, under the charge of the Central Union Labor League, of Philadelphia."

THE TOY PISTOL.

ROCKFORD, Ill., July 31.—A little son of John A. Brown, who was accidentally shot with a toy pistol a short time ago, died this morning with lockjaw. Two other boys in the city are not expected to live, and are liable to die any moment with the same trouble.

CHANGE OF BASE.

MILWAUKEE, July 31.—It is stated here among railroad men that Mr. George Olde, who recently resigned the position of general freight agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road, is soon to take the same position with the Chicago, Cincinnati and St. Louis company. He goes first to Europe to spend a couple of months.

MONONA ASSEMBLY.

MADISON, Wis., July 31.—The weather at the Monona Lake Association has been dark and cold. Many tents were soaked last night. The attendance from outside was very meagre. The regular devotional meeting was held at 8 o'clock in the morning. This was followed by the children's normal class, at which over 150 children were present. The Rev. Mr. Gillet, of Kalamazoo, spoke of the power of illustration in class-work. This being missionary-day, the principal exercises of the day were devoted to the cause. The Rev. J. F. Smith, of Ames, delivered an interesting address on the religious life of the Orient. Mrs. S. J. Rhea, of Lake Forest, Ill., spoke of her work in Persia. In the afternoon the Rev. Dr. W. M. Dana, of St. Paul, delivered a lecture on African missions, their development and outlook. This was followed by a missionary meeting, at which addresses were delivered by Mrs. T. C. Bailey, of Waukegan, Illinois, and Mrs. Jennie F. Wilkins, of Chicago. The Institute of Christian Philosophy held its opening session to-day, President John Jackson, of the University of Wisconsin, lecturing on "Mind and Matter," which was followed by a discussion under the banner of the Concord summer school. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union held a meeting after supper, followed by the Rev. A. E. Dunning, of Boston, who lectured on "The Man To-morrow in the School of Today." The annual meeting of stockholders was commenced to-night, but adjourned till morning, doing nothing of importance.

A DRESS PATTERN.

KANSAS CITY, July 31.—This evening at 8 o'clock, Philip Rice, a railroad bridge contractor and mason, was shot and killed by a man named McNett, with whom the dead man had words regarding a dress pattern. Rice returned from Opeka at 5 o'clock, and when he went home his wife told him that a piece of dress goods had been stolen, and also believed McNett was the thief. Rice accused the fellow of the deed, and the two had quite a row, during which Rice hurled a piece of wood at McNett's head. At this point the latter's wife ran out and gave him a big-fashioned navy revolver to her husband, telling him to shoot Rice quick. Her command was followed, one shot being fired, which took effect in Rice's stomach, causing death in less than an hour. McNett escaped across the line into Kansas.

The Wooden Shoe.

The wooden shoe, as we all know, is quite a national institution of France, and in Brittany more than in any other part of that country; its "clank" is heard everywhere; people wear it almost habitually there who would fight shy of it elsewhere, save on high days, holidays, and on grand occasions when "there is nothing like leather." Hence follows the necessity for a sufficiently large brotherhood of saboteurs who, as they could not possibly live in towns or large villages by reason of the cost of transport of the rough material exceeding the price of the manufactured goods, are forced to reside in woods and forests or other places where suitable timber may be available. Of the saboteur's house, such as it is, the state takes no notice; the tax-gatherer never comes near it; the owner can shift it to another locality when he likes; the wood he has purchased in this spot worked up and exhausted, away he goes to another. He buys a certain number of trees of the requisite kind, sometimes in a forest, sometimes by the sides of fields, which in Brittany are surrounded by lofty wood growth, to protect the crops from the violent gales which there prevail. The purchase, or rather the agreement to purchase, concluded at some village notary's bureau, and the timber marked, the saboteur comes to the place with his donkey-cart loaded with the few poor fittings and furniture of his ancient and much-soiled bedding, his rough self-made candles and cots, some well-worn culinary utensils, and the tools of his trade, to wit: felling-axes and saws, large-sized gouges, spoke-shaves and knives. These are his only movables. For the rest he sits on his heels and squats provides him. At dawn he comes; all day he is laboring with the sweat of his brow at his root-trace; by night it is finished, garished and occupied. He beats even a London contractor of scamped suburban villas in rapidity of construction. Then, if the material be abundant, he may remain on the chosen site for a year or two; if otherwise, a few months' location, and he seeks another clearing. He is a regular Balaam, this saboteur, and like that nomad, once he has seen all cities perish.

The never altering end and aim of a Breton wooden shoe-maker's being is to fabricate sabots, and out of this grove he and his never run. Such as the father is such is the son, and for the matter of that, the daughter also. Children, so to speak, are to the manner born of making sabots, and at so tender an age as five or six years they may be seen smoothing, blackening, varnishing, stringing, gathering in lots the coverings which their parents and other relations have cut, shaped and hollowed out into chaussons for the human foot. When a sufficient load of sabots has been completed at a certain fixing, the saboteur goes with it to the nearest village or town where his wholesale dealer resides, and to whom he disposes of the lot. With the money thus obtained, he replaces his tools, and the absolutely necessary for his wants, and with the residue pays for timber already bought, felled and utilized. Money is put into the purses of tree owner and notary, but little finding its place in that of the workman. Having no association with neighbors, abhorred by farmers, disdained by townsfolk, these Solitaires, in the midst of high civilization around, live without further contact or intercourse with society than that which has been told of, viz., to buy wood, and to sell their handicraft.—London Globe.

Walter Scott on the Literary Profession.

The following characteristic postscript to an unpublished letter of Sir Walter Scott's has been placed at our disposal by the courtesy of the correspondent to whom it was addressed. It gives in a forcible form Scott's well-known opinion of literature as a profession. It is dated February 2, 1825, when Scott was hard at work on "The Fair Maid of Perth." "Will you excuse my offering a piece of serious advice? Whatever pleasure you may find in literature, beware of looking to it as a profession, but seek that independence to which every one hopes to attain by studying the branch of industry which lies most within your reach. In this case you may pursue your literary amusements honorably and happily, but if ever you have to look to literature for an absolute and necessary support you must be degraded by the necessity of writing whether you feel inclined or not, and besides, must suffer all the miseries of a precarious and dependent existence."

This letter was addressed to the Rev. Charles Room, under the impression that Mr. Room, then a young man, proposed making literature a profession. This, however, was not the case, as Mr. Room was at that time preparing to enter the Christian ministry.—Academy.

A LUCKY MAN.

The Reason why W. M. Martin, of Bangor, Mich., Visits New Orleans.

A reporter of the Times-Democrat yesterday met Wm. M. Martin, an intelligent young colored man, a resident of Bangor, Mich., who came to this city for the purpose of collecting $15,000 from the Louisiana State Lottery Company.

The amount was due him as the holder of one-fifth of ticket No. 85,003, Class G, which won the capital prize of $75,000 in the drawing which took place on the 11th inst.

Martin, who, as above stated, is an intelligent man, took his good fortune quietly, although there was about him the possession of wealth always gives to a man, and there was also a light within his eyes which told of much joy and self-congratulation.

He said that he had come to the city to make the collection himself because of his inability to satisfy himself as to which of the many other methods of collection which had been suggested to him, was the best, and because he had at the same time a desire to visit the South, from which he had been absent many years.

He presented his ticket, he said, and was given a check on the New Orleans National Bank for the full amount, and the funds he invested in two bills of exchange on New York.

Relative to the manner in which he had come into possession of the lucky ticket, he said he had purchased it by correspondence from Mr. B. Frank Moore, the Chicago agent of the Louisiana State Lottery Company. He has been investing in lottery tickets at intervals during the year, and had once before struck it for $100.

Questioned regarding himself he said that he was 35 years of age, and before the war he was a resident of Lancaster, South Carolina. In 1864 he left Lancaster, and finally located in Bangor, Mich., where he opened a barber shop. He was a married man and had one child.

He intended to return home in a day or two by the way of Chicago, and when he got back to Bangor he proposed to enlarge and refit his barber shop with a portion of his money, but had not decided on the investment of the remainder. He, however, remarked, "I will certainly put it to a good use."—New Orleans Times-Democrat, July 23.

Murder or Suicide.

An announcement was made in this paper last Wednesday of the sudden death of the Rev. Henry Sanford at Brodhead early on the morning of that day. A coroner's inquest was deemed necessary under the circumstances and for several days the investigation has been progressing, but owing to a few mysterious points in the evidence, no satisfactory conclusion could be arrived at, and last evening the inquest was adjourned to August 8th. There appears to have been extraneous influences exercised, and the demise of the Rev. Mr. Sanford was due it is believed to other than natural causes. The inquest will be thorough and the facts doubtless obtained and promulgated.

PREVENTING FIRES.

The Council last night considered the question of Cisterns and Pass the Tree-Pruning Ordinance.

At the meeting of the Council last night only two members were absent on roll call. Immediately after the reading of the minutes of the special meeting called to settle the telephone question, Ald. Fitzgibbon asked the clerk if the marshal had made a return of his warrant before the meeting convened, and on being answered in the negative, Mr. Fitzgibbon objected to the approval of the minutes on the ground that one of the aldermen (Ald. Daily) had not been served with a notice of the meeting. The minutes were approved, notwithstanding. Ald. Fitzgibbon's protest that the proceedings of the meeting were illegal under the circumstances. The usual number of bills for street work and other at cisterns were made and referred. Ald. Robinson presented a petition from the German Lutheran Society, asking permission to remove their church from the East side of the river to the West side where the school conducted under the auspices of the Society is now located. The petition was allowed the work to be done under the supervision of the committee on highways, streets and bridges.

A. J. Hogan having furnished a good and sufficient bond to conduct business on the license of John Martin, the permission was given.

It was ordered that a lamp post be placed on the northwest corner of Jackson and Court streets, and another near Behl's house in the First ward.

A number of bills were allowed on the recommendation of the Finance committee, and a lengthy discussion ensued on a bill of John W. Allen of $21.50 for planting trees in the parks, which Ald. Valentine chairman of the committee on parks, reported was too much and recommended that the bill be reduced to $12.50, on the ground that Mr. Allen had overcharged the city, having agreed to charge $1 a tree, while the bill called for $2. Ald. Valentine stated that it was a question of veracity between himself and Mr. Allen. The bill of Mr. Allen was put on its passage and voted down by a vote of 4 to 3. Ald. Nowlan being excused. The committee appointed to examine into the question of having cisterns built beneath the railroad tracks on St. Mary's avenue and Glen streets, reported that the subject demanded some attention, as private land on Glen street would become inundated during freshets, as the condition is at present, but as a cistern there would cost $5,000, the committee did not think the city could compel the railroad company to build such a cistern, and therefore reported without recommendation. The report was received.

A bill of C. H. Lee, for work done in the parks, was not acted upon, as it was made out to R. M. Valentine, instead of to the city.

Ald. Fifield submitted a report, which was received, stating that the C. M. & St. P. road would widen the highway on the Afton road, to 65 feet, and that a fence would be constructed between the track and the highway.

Ald. Fitzgibbon moved that the aldermen of each ward except the Third be empowered to select a place for the establishment of cisterns for fire extinguishing purposes.

After some discussion, in which it was claimed that one reservoir in each ward would be sufficient protection against fire, the motion was carried.

The "tree trimming ordinance" was then adopted. The ordinance makes it compulsory on all owners of property to trim the trees in front of their houses and lands fronting the streets, leaving the foliage ten feet from the ground, a tree of not exceeding $10 and not less than $5 to be imposed in case of failure to obey the ordinance.

The Council then adjourned.

MAYOR CROFT ON FIRES.

As will be seen by a reference to the proceedings of last night's meeting of the common council, an effort was made towards providing a means of safety for the city, in the event of a large fire. This of course is but the initial step, but as a like one has been taken before without subsequent benefit, the mayor was called upon this morning and questioned upon the subject. Mayor Croft stated that he did not think the action of the council would result in much being done. "If," said he, "this action had been taken three meetings ago, we might have been able to do something. But they have waited until the tax levy was passed, so that no provision is made for the expenditure of money for erecting cisterns. If there was a surplus in the fire department fund, it would be turned into that channel, but every dollar of that fund finds some other use. The only way to build the cisterns would be to bond the city. The aldermen will go to work, select a location in their wards for cisterns and report a recommendation to the Council that the cisterns be built. Then the question will arise, how are we to pay for them? The subject will then be dropped, in all probability, as it has been heretofore. It is a patent fact to every citizen of Janesville that facilities for extinguishing fires, are imperatively needed here. Should a fire be started any distance from the river, the entire town would be at its mercy.

"Has the water works scheme been abandoned?" was asked.

"The men who were here a few days ago, endeavoring to secure a franchise, have left in disgust. Because Janesville has suffered immunity from disastrous fires, is no reason why precautionary measures should not be adopted."
